

Fortnite

I was in what looked like pleasant park. It had those houses with spiky roofs. I didn't have anything but my pickaxe and some shield mini potions. My shield was somewhat filled too. The dream wasn't in 3rd person (like Fortnite is) but i was there. I was the character. The textures around me seemed to be a mixture of real life and Fortnite.

Running around, I spotted someone with a sniper rifle, shown in the picture below, in a small grass field next to one of the buildings so I ran right at him to kill him and get the sniper rifle.

The park I was in. I remember jumping over some fence to get to the first dude

As I started hitting him with my pickaxe, he kept trying to shoot me but was missing each time. The slow reload speed was also a disadvantage to him. Eventually, I killed him and took the sniper rifle (he didn't have anything else).

The sniper rifle the dude had. It has a high reload time and a "warm up" between each bullet which allowed me to dominate him in close-quarter combat

I followed the sound of gunshots to the next house over (the brown one in the bottom left corner). As I approached it from behind (coming from the garden of the next house), I realized the sound was coming from the rooftop. I somehow teleported up there (I'm dreaming after all) then found 2 people.

The first one was high up on a stair he made from the street and was trying to kill the second player, who was on the roof with me. The first player seemed to only have a pickaxe and was dodging the bullets coming from the second player's sniper rifle. The spiky nature of the rooftop made it impossible for the second player to see me.

I lined up my shot with the sniper rifle and was about to shoot but something made me hesitate. The first player had seen me and was now aiming to shoot me seeing as I had a gun too. This made the second player realize I was there, but they didn't move. With the first player now shooting at me, I shot my sniper rifle at him but we both missed. We both aimed again and shot at each other but missed again. At the third shot, I got a headshot which instakilled him. I then climbed over the spike and lined up my shot at the second player.

She was a woman with white shallow hair drawn backward into a ponytail. Her face was spectacularly normal. It had no protruding features: flat nose and wide eyes. Her face itself was fairly circular. She was wearing very elegant clothes.

Once I woke up, I realized her clothes were very similar to those of Elisabeth Sobeck's from the Horizon games (Horizon zero dawn & Forbidden west). I was just talking to a friend about Horizon before I went to sleep, so that isn't a surprise.

Elisabeth Sobeck from Horizon: Zero Dawn. The woman's clothes were a copy of Elisabeth's.

My first thought was that her hair resembles Ciri from The Witcher 3.

Ciri from the video game. This is who I first thought to be an exact copy of the woman.

Ciri's hair seems to have the exact color of white but her hair is much thicker than this woman in my dream. Ciri's hair is also put to like the "corners" of her head, not drawn back into a ponytail.

Interestingly, her overall facial features and hair are an insanely perfect match for Ciri's actor in the TV series "The Witcher".

It's weird cause I never even saw the series nor have I ever seen this actor before. I even asked chatgpt to describe this woman to me and gave him the photo provided here, and he said she had "Long, blonde, silver hair. Fair face complexion with a smooth symmetrical face. Moderately-wide eyes.". Almost exactly fitting my own description.

Anyways, back to the dream. This woman then told me that I had killed her teammate, which was the one who I got the sniper rifle from, so she had nothing to live for. I should just kill her. I put down my sniper rifle and idled for a second or two, then I went over to her. Suddenly the spiky roof turned into a flat roof, and I kissed her as I wrapped my arms around her. She didn't push back and gave completely into my hands. I pushed her onto the floor and continued. It felt oddly calming.

Then my annoying phone alarm rang with my obnoxious ringtone (I have midyear tests starting tomorrow). I was actually incredibly disappointed to not continue the dream. But yeah life is life I guess.
